'Assurance' on B26 Smuggling Related

By ORR KELLY Star Starf Writer

the deal could But when he was asked wheth-Force officer, whom he identigo through until (Gregory) er he had been fold directly by BUFFALO, N. Y.—The friend Board nad obtained agreement anyone other than Board, the Air Force Base, Fla., told him ad the blessing of the U.S. tion by Hawke's attorney, Ed-said he had not.

who got John Richard Hawke a between the two governments" alleged mastermind of the deal, to "stop rocking the boat, stop that the Central Intelligence putting on pressure."

All Force Base, Fig., told mind the U.S.), Caiden that the Central Intelligence putting on pressure."

"He said the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the Air Force had the U.S. The Hamber of the U.S. The U.S. The Hamber of the U.S. The Hamber of the U.S. The U win Marger, at the trial of the Martin Caidin, a prolific aviation writer and the legal sponsion for the British-born Hawke, and his wife, Jean, in this Board told him the agreement country, testified yesterday that the told Hawke early last year that the B26 operation present- this was being done for the latter that the B26 operation present- this was being done for the latter that the latter two men charged with conspiration to have to do the operation to Air Force officers before the flights and that he discussed it in detail told him it was," Caidin said he was convinced that the latter that the directed him to cease further that the B26 operation presentthis was being done for the Hawke's arrest.

FOIAL

U.S. government?" Marger At one point, he said, the Air of information for the CIA, he asked. Caidin said he had. way these planes could have been flown out of the country."

Under cross examination by U.S. Attorney John T. Curtin, however, Caidin said he had given Hawks a stern warning about his involvement in the operation. He acknowledged that, in an interview with a customs agent, he had said:

"I said . . 'be sure to get your damn money for your flight each time and while . . . this is a wild-air operation, make sure you get paid for each flight as it goes on."

Hawke, a bearded ex-Royal Air Force fighter pilot who flew seven of the bombers from Tuscon, Ariz, to a Portuguese airfield near Lisbon between May and August of last year, has insisted since the time of his arrest that he was certain he was working for the CIA.

On trial with Hawke is Henri Marin de Montmarin, a tall, distinguished - looking French count who allegedly acted as a go-between in the deal.

Subpoened as a witness for the defense are CIA Director Richard Helms, who is expected to be represented by the CIA's chief counsel, Lawrence R. Houston, and Richard M. Bissell Jr., former deputy director of the CIA.

Sanitized - Approved For Release: CIA-RDP75-00149R000100420009-9